Federal Bonding

- The Federal Bonding Program assists by providing employers with a free fidelity bond on the job seekers behalf.
- A fidelity bond is an insurance policy that many employers obtain to protect their business against losses that occur as a result of fraudulent acts by dishonest employees.
- Some job seekers are considered high risk which hinders their ability to become commercially bonded. Issues such as criminal backgrounds, poor credit history, lack of work history, substance abuse background, and dishonorable discharge from the military may make a job seeker considered high-risk.
- Fidelity bonds are issued in increments of $5,000
